

I thought we live in a free country where services rendered by a company that provides benefits for its clients was a good thing.